

"thou hast already destroyed my "satisfaction. Art thou come still "further to torment me?"

The tempting scenes by fancy wrought,
 Will fly before our serious thought.

"Your

"Your satisfaction," said the old man, "will always be soon destroy"ed, if it is not better placed than
 "it was then."

"I don't know that," said Headstrong; "but I well know I was
 "then highly pleased, and am now
 "most miserable; every thing cross-
 "es me."

"No wonder," replies the Phantom—"You were then entertained
 "in the palace of False Pleasure—
 "You are now in the realms of "Disappointment. There every thing

"you